Heritage Days spotlight Camp Fletcher

Island military base named for first Accomack soldier killed in World War II

BY CAROL VAUGHN
Eastern Shore Post

The history of a World War II-era military camp on Chincoteague is the theme of the town's 2023 Heritage Days, organized by the Museum of Chincoteague Island.

Heritage Days, billed as a town-wide celebration, are March 10 and 11. The weekend's events mark the beginning of the spring season for the museum, which has reduced hours in winter.

In addition to museum exhibits, lectures, and other Heritage Days activities, a team of state archeologists is set to visit Chincoteague to conduct a dig at the site of the former camp the week after the celebration.

Camp Fletcher was named after Chincoteague resident Charles Fletcher, the first Accomack County soldier killed in action during World War II, according to Cindy Faith, museum director.

the Camp Fletcher sign.

The Fletchers owned a delicatessen on Main Street and family members still live on Chincoteague.

The camp, which was on Chincoteague from soon after the United States entered the war through the war's end, was on property later owned by Dr. Donald Amrien.

Most of the buildings burned in a 1945 fire.

The camp is among the lesser-known chapters of island history.

"There is a really cool part of our story that people around here are forgetting even existed," Faith said.

Some information about the camp that had been top secret recently was made public, "so we can verify some stories that were told that were just family passed down or tales," she said.

Faith said in the course of her various activities, she spends time with numerous senior citizens on

Anderson won't challenge Bloxom in House GOP primary

Endorses Bloxom after delegates lumped into same election district

BY CAROL VAUGHN
Eastern Shore Post

Robert Bloxom Jr., who first won election to the House of Delegates in 2014, appears to be set for re-election after what might have been the biggest test of his political career.

The Republican delegate who previously said he would compete for the GOP nomination against Bloxom announced Tuesday he will not seek election to represent the new 100th House District.

The decision by Delegate Timothy V. Anderson averts a Republican primary this spring and ensures Bloxom, of Accomack County, will be on the ballot in November in a Republican-leaning district.

Redistricting after the 2020 census placed Bloxom and state Sen. Lynwood Lewis in districts with Hampton Roads incumbents — meaning this year could have been the first time in hundreds of years that an Eastern Chincoteague and has asked them about Camp Fletcher.

"I have always been curious about Camp Fletcher. ... Camp Fletcher was something that most of them really didn't know anything about, and I was really taken aback by that because I thought this must have been a big deal at the time," Faith said.

She contacted Michael Clem, of the Virginia Department of Historic Resources, Division of State Archaeology, who agreed to do a dig at the site. The team will be on Chincoteague the week of March 13.

Faith hopes the dig might shed more light on what went on at the camp.

Around 80 soldiers from around the country were stationed at Camp Fletcher at its height.

Some local girls married soldiers from the camp and at least one soldier stayed on in Chincoteague afterward.

"The real bombshell of the whole Camp Fletcher story is what the men in the Army base did — because if you ask people, they are like, 'We don't know,'" she said.

With information that was recently uncovered, it is now known that the soldiers at the camp, divided Soldiers at the camp also trained dogs for military use.

Youth, 17, enters plea agreement in shooting at Smith Center

BY NANCY DRURY DUNCAN
Eastern Shore Post

A 17-year-old male entered into a plea agreement that will reduce the severity of his two felony charges and allow him to enter the juvenile justice system.

Jaul Naheem Galloway, of Cape Charles, originally charged as an adult with malicious wounding and maliciously shooting at an occupied vehicle, pleaded guilty to the lesser charges of unlawful wounding and unlawfully shooting into an occupied vehicle. In January 2022, police responded to the Mary N. Smith Cultural Enrichment Center in Accomac after receiving a 911 call from a juvenile who told them she had been shot.

The girl identified the shooter as Galloway, said Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan.

She was a passenger in a car with another teen who drove her to the hospital.

A deputy spoke with people at the scene who described chaos and fights erupting as people were leaving the birthday party. Shots were fired and a witness said she saw the defendant standing in front of the victim's car.

Judge W. Revell Lewis III accepted the agreement and remanded Galloway to the department of juvenile justice according to the terms of the agreement. He told Galloway, "You are most fortunate the victim was not hurt any worse than she was. You have family support and will have an opportunity to get your life on track."

Galloway is set for sentencing on April 6.

ESCC Phi Theta Kappa Visits Capitol for Legislative Session

Wednesday, February 15th, Senator Lynwood Lewis hosted Eastern Shore Community College Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society student representatives at the General Assembly in Richmond. Senator Lewis elaborated on the experience.

“Wednesday was a long and busy procedural day for both the House and the Senate, but an interesting day for a visit for these students. During our recesses, Delegate Bloxom and I were able to sit down with the group to discuss the workings of the legislature as well as the students’ educational and professional futures. I was also able to take the time to give the group a tour of the Senate floor and

Vice President, Dr. Raymond Burton, who made these comments: “Our students capably represented ‘Your Eastern Shore’ Community College with their bright and insightful questions to Delegate Bloxom and Senator Lewis. It was my pleasure to accompany them to the capitol and to see the excitement and pride they displayed when being recognized by name by Lieutenant Governor Winsome Earl-Sears from the senate floor.”

Eastern Shore Community College is finishing the 1st 8-week session of the Spring Semester with Spring Break scheduled for March 4-12. The 2nd 8-week session begins on Monday, March 13. Registration is open and will include Summer Class registration beginning Monday, March 6. Contact ESCC at 757-789-1720 or email studentservices@es.vccs.edu for more information.

PTK President Fidel Guerrero came away from the trip fascinated by the process the club was able to witness. “You hear about it from a distance but to see how it works was really cool. We were able to meet a lot of people, to express our thoughts on education in the state, and also share any challenges that we’ve encountered.”

ESCC President Dr. Jim Shaeffer was in attendance and was appreciative for the student opportunity. He commented, “It was special for us to share this day with our students while they experienced the history of our capitol and engaged with our local representation. We are so thankful for the support of Senator Lewis and Delegate Bloxom and welcoming us to the capitol. A special thank you to legislative assistant Gabby Francese for all her help as well.”

It was a fantastic visit, and I appreciate ESCC and PTK reaching out to our office so we were able to ensure each student had an interesting and educational experience while visiting their state legislature.”

After sewer plant goes ‘bonkers,’ Parksley may fine violators

BY CAROL VAUGHN
Eastern Shore Post

Parksley’s Town Council tabled discussion last week of a possible amendment to the sewage ordinance that, if approved, would increase the fine for violations.

Mayor Frank Russell said the town has had problems with municipal sewer customers in the business district pulling filters out of sewage tanks, among other violations.

That has happened five times recently, according to the council discussion.

“Every time they do that, that causes our sewage treatment plant to go bonkers because all the stuff the filter is supposed to be filtering out is no longer being filtered out,” he said.

Additionally, it was discovered that someone had parked a trailer beside a building that is connected to the system and had run a line from the trailer connecting it to the sewage system, “which is an absolute no-no,” Russell said.

He asked the council to impose a fine of at least $2,000 for such infractions, saying it costs the town at least that much to “reseed” the microbes in the treatment plant each time.

Locks are being installed on tank lids to prevent tampering with the system, according to Russell.

According to council discussion, the current ordinance allows a maximum $500 fine per incident, terming violations a Class 1 misdemeanor.

Amending the ordinance to make violation a Class 3 misdemeanor would increase the maximum to $2,500 per incident.

Councilman Rickey Taylor noted the recent violators were not fined, saying, “We have a problem of enforcement of our own ordinance.”

Russell said the town will start enforcing the law, “now that we know what it is.”

“We’ve got to put an end to this,” he said.

Town Clerk Lauren Lewis updated the council about potential future sewer service through the Hampton Roads Service District.

Lewis met with HRSD’s director of small community projects earlier this month.

“While they are optimistic, it is absolutely going to be years and years before it comes to Parksley,” Lewis said.

Currently, a line is being installed from Tasley to Accomac, around the same distance as a line from Tasley to Parksley would be, at a cost of around $8 million, she said.

“We would have to do a lot to our current plant for it to be compatible with what they would be doing,” Lewis said.

While the HRSD director did not give an estimate of when a line could come to Parksley, Lewis said most of the district’s capital projects at present are eight to 10 years out.

Short-term rentals

The council also tabled discussion of an ordinance to regulate short-term rentals.

A draft ordinance similar to Onancock’s was prepared by the town attorney and distributed to council members.

Russell asked to change a provision for percentage-based fee or tax on the businesses to a flat rate of $500 per year, as well as to include in the ordinance provisions to review each business every six months to see that they are following regulations and to require all parking be behind the building or in a driveway.

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION

Eloquence, reasoning needed to defend hunting traditions

A local 4-H group recently sponsored a youth squirrel hunting contest. For some, it seemed as innocuous as participation in a fishing tournament, stalking a trophy buck, or sitting in a duck blind. Hunting and fishing are grand traditions on the Eastern Shore.

Further, it's always positive when young people are taught firearms safety by responsible adults who preach and model proper gun ownership, which was the situation at the 4-H event.

But as the squirrel hunters practiced their Second Amendment rights under the U.S. Constitution, members of a group opposed to the event practiced their First Amendment rights. There was an online petition, signed by more than 1,600 people, that stated the hunt will make children insensitive and disrespectful of living creatures, among other concerns.

This deepened the learning experience for our young hunters, as one of our constitutional freedoms gave rise to another. In the process, the squirrel hunt overlapped with the lessons learned in school.

Just as there are rules for the safe handling of firearms and the ethical taking of game, there are rules for effective and responsible debate during times of trial.

The 4-H hunters should know that's why those research papers and class presentations are important — it is good practice in sharpening one's reasoning and supporting a position. English classes expose young hunters to well-made thought and help them create it. In science classes, students learn about life cycles and habitats.

To defend their right to hunt, our hunters — now and in the future — need to be eloquent, reasoned, and engaged when an intellectual conflict arises.

The young hunters also received a lesson in the radical politics and protests of our argumentative era. Organizers of the hunt received negative — and, in some cases, hateful — emails and phone calls from those who protested it. This shows our young hunters how not to act.

It's always lowbrow to criticize volunteers, especially those who help children. Hunting wild game isn't for everyone. Those who enjoy the activity will need to be cerebral, articulate defenders of its heritage and importance.

Onancock residents meet in 'good faith'

To the editor:

As a member of the Onancock Residents Group (ORG), I was disheartened to read the letter submitted by Mark Sinclair and his misrepresentations.

He is aware that ORG has been meeting and participating in all requested meetings with the Friends of Onancock School, or FOS. To clarify, there was no attempt by ORG to delay our meetings with the FOS.

The third meeting was scheduled for Jan. 31 and was met. Three ORG participants had travel commitments and simply requested a date change. FOS declined the request. Again, the meeting was held and ORG was represented.

A further misrepresentation is that ORG is not participating in good faith and that the process has been delayed. To the contrary, FOS controls this process, setting the dates and times when FOS and ORG meet.

The ORG has initiated P.O. Box 316 in Onancock since we knew our website would not happen immediately. Interested parties may contact us by way of the post office box. This box is checked daily with responses returned accordingly.

As a grassroots organization, we are developing the means to keep the Onancock community informed. It should also be noted there are active communications through email with those in ORG and FOS.

The ORG website is currently under development. This will be used not only for pavilion-related matters, but for other initiatives of concern in the town of Onancock. Additional contact information will be provided by way of this new website once completed.

ORG is and will continue to meet with FOS in good faith because the pavilion project will have a direct impact on the town of Onancock and its residents for years to come.

Riverside has a heart for heart patients

To the editor:

As February and National Heart Disease awareness month draw to a close, I would like to take another opportunity to publicly thank Riverside and its team of professionals.

Since 2017, when I was diagnosed with heart failure by Dr. Lloyd Kellam, I have been meticulously well cared for at Riverside. Frankly, I owe them my life.

My family as well has been welcomed, comforted, informed, and loved by my physicians, nurses, cardiac techs, lab, administration, and community.

I could not ask for more in any way.

Now, Turner needs help during a time of need and his friends have encouraged everyone to donate.

Last summer Turner was diagnosed with leukemia. He underwent several rounds of chemotherapy and recently had a bone marrow transplant in Richmond.

His journey has been an expensive one. When he is released from the hospital, he will need to live within 20 minutes of the hospital during his recovery and rent a home in Richmond.

Turner has a cancer predisposition syndrome — his mother and sister also had it. His mother died in 2017

You can help

An internet fundraiser has been established for David Turner, of Parksley, (at right) who recently had a bone marrow transplant. Visit go-fundme.com/f/helping-firefighter-david-turner-family from breast cancer and his sister died in 2020, at the age of 16, from brain cancer.

Turner's 8-year-old daughter also has tested positive for the cancer predisposition.

Turner's friend, Wayne Marshall Jr., started a fundraising page on the internet to help him in recovery.

The fundraising initiative received publicity from WAVY-TV in Hampton Roads and has been shared widely on social media.

"My family and I would be so grateful for any type of donation, big or small, it will help us get through this difficult time," Turner wrote on the fundraising page, which can be found at <https://www.gofundme.com/f/helping-firefighter-david-turner-family>

As of this writing, the page is nearing its goal of $10,000. However, in a giving community like the Eastern Shore, far exceeding the goal is possible. It would provide financial stability for a family going through a challenging time.

There are a lot of needs on the Eastern Shore and so many of us contribute what we can to help meet those needs.

But it is especially important to donate to Turner, whose vocation asks him to be present for others during their emergencies.

Donating is a way to help a man who helps others.

Bloxom as a conferee: 'Where I bring the most value to the district'

All the committees have completed their work. The bills have either failed in one chamber of the General Assembly or the other or are on the floor of the opposite chamber to be voted on.

The floor sessions do not seem as long as in the past. There were a lot of bills submitted that had no chance of passing. I call them "brochure" bills. The patron can stand and pontificate on the measure, and to my amusement, they are shocked when the majority in the other chamber dismisses their argument quickly with a vote to kill the bill.

Delegate Rob Bloxom

I have had much success with my bills this year. I had 15 bills under my name. One, on voting procedure, I did not pursue and got the committee chairwoman to "pocket" the bill. The bill was never docketed so I effectively killed it myself.

Another bill that I knew had no chance of passing would make the permanent absentee voter list an annual one. I told the Senate committee about the bill and basically told them to entertain a motion to kill it. There is no reason to postpone the obvious.

The only other measure that did not make it through the other body was a measure that we both handled in the budget so there was no need to have such a bill.

The other 12 bills are proceeding to the governor's desk. I will report on them as the governor signs them into law. I categorize most as "making government function better" bills.

My main work this week has been on the budget as a conferee.

We started with all the budget conferees getting our overviews in a side-by-side comparison from the staffs on Friday night.

The next step was to break into small groups to discuss in detail the differences. The small group is made of three delegates paired with three senators with the appropriate staff member from each chamber around a table going line-by-line on the different priorities.

The language to direct agencies to do something or have a particular project funded is all open for discussion. We met in small groups from 1 to 8:30 p.m. on Sunday, depending on the different segment of the budget.

The budget is broken into subject matter such as natural resources, public safety, capital outlay, health and human resources, and others. We meet whenever the two bodies are not meeting, usually after the floor sessions, and through dinner into the late evening. These discussions are not open to the public.

There are some discussions that are decided at the chairman level, such as major tax or major expenditures that affect the money, but the line-by-line execution of the budget is the conferees' decision.

It has been my honor to be in this discussion, and I view it as where I bring the most value to the district.

This is week seven and our last week in Richmond conducting business for the people of Virginia.

This session has passed quickly, but it has been a successful one.

It has been a pleasure to represent you, and I look forward to seeing you in the upcoming months as I return to the district.

As always, if you need to contact me, please call the district office at 757-824-3456 or email me at delrbloxom@house.virginia.gov.

From the waitress world: the good and bad

Our interviews with waitresses revealed three themes: tips, beloved customers, and jerks.

David Lozell Martin

In the jerk category, an Eastern Shore waitress said she wore a wedding ring even though she was single because she hoped that her being married would discourage the lounge lizards. It didn't. "If anything," she said, "they took my being married as a challenge."

Another Eastern Shore waitress said she often received overly large tips from men but never received big tips from those same men when they were dining with their wives.

One waitress we talked with worked in an expensive nightclub in Washington, D.C. A high roller came in, sharply dressed and expensively watched, with a glamorous date.

The couple drank the best wine and liquor, ordered from the top of the menu, frequently entertained guests who stopped by, and racked up a bill just over $600. The high-roller paid the bill and then took out a wad of cash and peeled off two $100 bills that he left on the table for a tip.

But the waitress was watching when the man's hotshot date walked by the table and casually snatched the two hundreds, slipping them into her ample décolletage.

The waitress was angry but quick-thinking. She rushed over to the high roller just as he reached the exit door. "I'm sorry my service disappointed you," she told him.

He was confused. "You were fine, hon. Excellent service."

She said, "I thought you were disappointed because you didn't leave a tip."

"What? I left you $200."

The waitress looked at the man's date whose face flashed guilt like a red neon sign on a lonely highway.

Understanding what had happened, the man took out his bankroll and peeled off four $100 bills, handing them to the waitress. Then he grabbed his date by the arm, escorting her out while telling her, "You and I are going to have a talk."

On a happier note and in the category of beloved customers, a waitress who worked at a Waffle House when she was in high school recalled a man who came in every day, sat in the same seat at the counter, and ordered the same meal. Never varied from his routine. Never spoke to her after he ordered. He wasn't mean or rude. He was just withdrawn, an isolated and lonely old man.

She took it as a challenge to brighten his day. She chatted while bringing his food, telling him about her high school experiences. She chatted when she gave him the check. But she never got a reply.

One day she took an egg from the basket that hung near the cook. Using a marker, she drew a devil's face on the egg, horns and tail and all. She took the egg over to the quiet man, showed it to him, and said, "Look, a deviled egg."

He laughed! And the waitress took this as a victory she celebrated even 35 years later.

The waitresses we talked with had two messages for customers. First, remember that the waitress is doing everything she can to make your dining experience perfect.

Second, and this reminder they offered with an exclamation point: The standard tip today is 20%!

Disagrees with Wachapreague Town Council appointment

BY STUART BELL

Guest Columnist

Last November, Wachapreague held elections for Town Council. One announced candidate for an open council seat withdrew from the election seven weeks prior to election day.

Virginia no longer votes just on election day. It now has an election season with the addition of early voting.

The announced candidate withdrew only three days prior to the start of early voting. The county had no time to change the ballots that were already printed.

That meant there was no candidate for the open seat, providing an opportunity for a write-in candidate.

The county published a public notice advising voters of the candidate's withdrawal and advised each voter personally of the withdrawal when they voted. Unfortunately, mail-in voters were not told, resulting in a tie between John Joeckel and Don Motto.

A tiebreaker was held and Joeckel lost the tiebreaker to Motto, the candidate who had withdrawn seven weeks before the election.

The Accomack County Board of Supervisors, not satisfied with what occurred, brought this to the attention of Delegate Rob Bloxom. Bloxom introduced legislation in the General Assembly that would mandate "the person having the next highest number of votes shall be deemed to have been elected to such office and shall receive the certificate of election."

Earlier this month the Wachapreague Town Council was made aware of the Bloxom legislation. It was also made aware that the legislation was on its way to passage in the both the state Senate and House of Delegates.

Rather than appoint Joeckel, who had the highest votes in the election, three members of the town council — Sandie Puchalski, Robert Williams, and Stephen Joseph — voted to appoint Glen Schagelin, who was not on the ballot in November.

This act suppressed the votes of town residents and was contrary to what each knew was occurring legislatively.

The actions of these three council members may have been technically and legally correct at the time. Their actions were morally and ethically wrong since Puchalski, Williams, and Joseph were well aware of what was occurring in the General Assembly to correct the electoral wrong.

Last Friday, Bloxom's legislation to fix this election wrong passed the House of Delegates unanimously, 99-0, and then passed the state Senate unanimously, 39-0. The governor will now sign the legislation.

It would seem that Puchalski, Williams, and Joseph are the only elected officials in Virginia who did not do what is right.

Perhaps these three council members should remember what happened in the November election, when the incumbent mayor got a shellacking, losing 90-52. It's an example of how elected officials can eventually outlast their welcome.

Photographer Cameron Evans to speak about Tangier

On Friday, March 10, at 6 p.m., Shore History will host Tangier Island photographer Cameron Evans to speak at the Onancock Baptist Church about his experience growing up on the small island just 11 miles away from the mouth of Onancock Creek. Following the lecture, a reception and exhibit viewing will be held at Ker Place complete with fresh Tangier oysters and a chance to meet the young photographer. "Growing up on Tangier was a unique experience that I truly cherished," said the 22-year-old photographer. "I began working when I was 10 years old in the floats of my dad's crab shanty. Learning about the water business has always been a big part of my life. Whether I did the work myself or watched other watermen work the water, I was fully immersed and appreciative of the craft." Evans received his first camera for his 16th birthday. Since then, he has been photographing Tangier, perfecting his craft, capturing scenic landscapes, wildlife, and the day to day of hardworking Tangier watermen. A recent graduate from Virginia Wesleyan University, Evans is also a waterfowl guide and gallery owner on the island. Evans' photographs will be on exhibit at Ker Place and available for purchase from March 10 through May. Ker Place is open Tuesday-Saturday 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information on the exhibit or the photography of Cameron Evans, call Shore History at 757-787-8012 or visit shorehistory.org

Shore resident wasn't in the Virginia General Assembly or its predecessor.

"After careful thought, prayer and reflection with my family, I will not be seeking reelection in the new 100th House District and fully endorse Rob Bloxom to represent my current district in Virginia Beach and his current district on the Eastern Shore," Del. Timothy V. Anderson said in a post on his campaign Facebook page.

Anderson in an email to the Post confirmed the statement.

Anderson, of Virginia Beach, a 48-year-old attorney and freshman delegate, represents the 83rd district in the Virginia House of Delegates.

Bloxom, 60, who lives near Parkesley, has represented the 100th district in the House of Delegates since 2014, when he won a special election.

Bloxom owns Shore Tire & Auto in Onley, two NAPA Auto Parts stores, and Egret Pointe Seafood Company.

The two men were set to face off in a June primary, after redistricting resulted in both living in the newly redrawn 100th district.

"It is unfortunate that through the new redistricting process that so many incumbents are paired together," Bloxom said Tuesday.

"We are losing a wealth of knowledge and experience on both sides of the aisle," he said, adding, "I look forward to working with Tim in his future endeavors."

The new district lines mean around 56% of the district's population is on the Eastern Shore — breaking down to around 40% in Accomack and almost 16% in Northampton County — and 44% is in Virginia Beach, according to the Virginia Public Access Project.

Anderson in the post said he intends to finish his term in the House of Delegates "and will wait for the next door in my political life to open."

He thanked his supporters for "your prayers, your kind words and your support."

Anderson has said in the past that Bloxom "has a very left-leaning voting history."

In another Facebook post last week, Anderson addressed rumors about his next political move, including a rumor he is running for Commonwealth's Attorney in Chesterfield.

"Allow me to address that head on. It was never my intention to run for that seat," he said, but added, "However, I did poll likely GOP primary voters on name recognition a few weeks ago in Chesterfield and without even talking about running, I polled at 44%."

Other options Anderson mentioned in the post include running in a primary for an open Senate seat or "sit out 2023 and wait until 2024."

Bloxom spoke about the history of the Eastern Shore's representation in the General Assembly last August, after Anderson announced he would seek the GOP nomination.

"We've had representation from the Eastern Shore in the seat of government since the House of Burgesses," he said then, adding, "I don't think the Eastern Shore people are going to want to give that up. It's not about Republican; it's not about Democrat — I think it's more about us."

Joyce Shores

Mrs. Kathleen "Joyce" Shores, 96, wife of the late Robert L. Shores and lifelong resident of Tangier Island, passed away at her home on Saturday, Feb. 18, 2023, with her loving family by her side. Born Sept. 10, 1926, on Tangier, she was the daughter of the late Roland and Estelle Parks.

Mrs. Shores

Joyce filled many roles throughout her life, always with her family and her community in mind. During World War II she worked in a factory in Baltimore. Upon her return home, she got married and started her family. As the years passed, she became known as the island's Avon lady, having provided essential beauty products to residents for more than 30 years. Those who knew Joyce best knew her favorite work days were those spent working alongside her husband at the crab house. She was committed to giving back and bettering her community. Joyce played a key role in advocating the ferry route from Onancock to Tangier in the late '70s. Over the years, she gave back in countless ways, but especially enjoyed her many years on the homecoming committee. She loved working with the kids in the recreation center, and thanks to Joyce, the dance hall was always a fun place to hang out and share her love of music and dance with the island kids.

The kind of person everyone enjoyed being around, Joyce was feisty, witty, comical, and full of personality. Among her many talents, few could rival her storytelling. If you ran into Joyce, you could guarantee she'd be dressed to the nines (with matching accessories) and wearing a smile that would brighten anyone's day. She loved music and dancing, was an exceptional cook, and she absolutely adored her family and her island.

In addition to her husband and parents, Joyce was predeceased by her daughter, Betty Anne Bradshaw, and her husband, Charles; son, Robert R. Shores; son-in-law, Timothy Marshall; grandson, Lance Hunter; brothers and sisters, Ralph "Skip" Parks, Owen Parks, Bill Parks, Betty J. Pruitt, Annette Diehl, and Bache Parks; and nieces and nephews, Rose, Hugh, Jeff, and Terry Parks.

Left to cherish her memory are her daughters, Lana Marshall, Rosetta Crockett, and Nancy Crockett and her husband, Jeff, all of Tangier, and Roberta Hunter and Lula Belle Shores of Chesapeake; grandchildren, Bev Parks, B.J. Palmer-Steed, Charles Bradshaw, Marian Crockett, Cathy Parks, Lana Hunter, Danielle Crockett, Christopher Shores, and Bobby Shores; great-grandchildren, Lindsay Photakos, Timothy Palmer, Drew Parks, Forest Steed, Lance Parks, Schyler Parks, Lance Cano, Betty Anne Bradshaw, Layah Cano, Isabella Cabrera, Gavin Parks, Grayson Shores, and Isaac Shores; great-great-grandchildren, Mason and Camden Photakos and Kyleigh Jo and Sawyer Palmer; sisters-in-law, Fern Parks and Helen Parks; brother-in-law, Mitchell Shores; and nieces and nephews, Skippy and Junior Parks and Genie, Lee, and Gil Pruitt, Renee Smith, Dana O'Bier, and Bache, Steve, and Mickey Parks.

A service to celebrate Joyce's life will be held at the New Testament Congregation on Sunday, Feb. 26, 2023, at 2 p.m., with Elder Duane Crockett officiating. The family will greet friends at the church one hour prior to the service.

Contributions in Joyce's memory may be made to the Tangier Volunteer Fire Department, P.O. Box 239, Tangier, VA 23440 or to New Testament Congregation Missions Fund, c/o Faith Char-nock, P.O. Box 266, Tangier, VA 23440.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Northampton County Planning Commission will meet on Tuesday, March 7, 2023, at 6:00 p.m. in the Board Chambers located at 16404 Courthouse Road in Eastville, Virginia. The purpose is to conduct regular business and review the following applications to forward recommendations to the Eastville Town Council.

ZTA 2023-02: The Town of Eastville has applied for a Zoning Text Amendment to add the following additions to the Eastville Zoning Ordinance:

The addition of a new section to Article XVIII - Supplemental District Regulations

“Section 18-11 Supplemental District Regulations: Fences and walls are permitted in any yard but are subject to the standards and conditions in this section.

• Purpose: to define the perimeter of a lot; to provide screening, privacy or protection, as around a swimming pool. (b) No fence or wall shall be closer than three (3) feet to any right-of-way line and shall not obstruct any sight distance from a corner or roadway entrance point. (c) Any fence built upon a property line shall be agreed upon in writing by both property owners, and the agreement shall accompany the zoning permit (zoning clearance) application. Posts are to be placed on the applicant's side on any fence erected or installed. (d) Fences or walls extending beyond the front setback line shall not exceed four (4) feet in height and shall not obscure the view from adjacent properties. (e) No fence or wall shall be erected to a height exceeding six (6) feet, except in the Commercial General (CG) and in-Town Farm (ITF) Districts, where the maximum height shall be eight (8) feet. (f) Fences shall not contain an electric charge or barbed wire except where used as perimeter fencing for livestock in the ITF District. The removal of a section from Article IV - Administrative and Enforcement “Section 4-3 (b) Special Exceptions: The Eastville Town Council may grant a special exception where such special exception is specified and permitted by the district regulations of this Ordinance. The Town Council may grant, deny, or grant conditionally the special exception. Standards and processing for special exceptions shall be the same as the criteria established for a special use permit as set forth in this section.”

The addition of a revision to Article IV - Administrative and Enforcement Section 4-3 Special Use Permits (a) (3) After notice and public hearing in accordance with Section “15.2-2204” of the Code of Virginia, as amended, the Planning Commission shall consider the proposed amendment and submit a recommendation, along with plats and explanatory materials to the Town Council. If the Commission fails to submit a recommendation to the Town Council within sixty (60) days of the first meeting of the Planning Commission after the proposed amendment has been referred to it, the Planning Commission shall be deemed to have approved the proposed amendment.

The addition of a new section to Article IV - Administrative and Enforcement “Section 4-5 Special Exceptions: For the purposes of this ordinance, the terms special exception and special use permit are deviations from certain existing ordinance requirements, where specifically authorized in this ordinance. Special exceptions shall have the same administrative and procedural requirements as special use permits, as specified in Section 4-3 et seq of this Article. However, applications for special exceptions shall only necessitate a public hearing by the Town Council, unless the Town Council refers an application to the Northampton County Planning Commission for their review and recommendation.”
